Greenhouse Whitefly Control is simple, cheap and effective with Bug Central.

Encarsia is a tiny parasitic wasp that attacks whitefly larvae. It is effective at controlling greenhouse whitefly, as well as the poinsettia whitefly. Correct identification of the whitefly is important, as Encarsia is not effective against some other whitefly such as Ash Whitefly. Releases are best done when low numbers of whitefly larvae are noticed on the underside of leaves.

Encarsia work very well on a range of crops including tomatoes, vegetables and a wide range of ornamentals. They can be released both outdoors as well as in greenhouses. Encarsia work best when daytime temperatures are above 22°C and night temperatures are above 15°C. Development stops below 13°C. Whilst they are most active in warmer regions, they can tolerate a wide range of climates including greenhouses.

The Product contains approximately 500 Encarsia (standard gardens) or 1000 Encarsia (large gardens). The product comes as 'cards' each containing 100 black parasitised whitefly scales. Small order is suitable for up to medium sized vegetable plots or home garden greenhouses, with the larger order required for large gardens or in situations with high pest pressure.

Encarsia works best with multiple releases, so the minimum order is for three releases delivered a fortnight apart (a single order includes all three deliveries). The order includes information on general whitefly control.

Releasing the Encarsia is as easy as placing the cards within the plants, releasing as close to the target pests as possible. Detailed information on the release method is included in the information booklet that will be emailed to you after placing your order.

To Order, simply choose the product option on our secure on-line order system. You will receive confirmation of your order within 3 working days. The product is delivered by Australia Post's Express Post service, so delivery time is normally only 1 to 2 days from orders being processed.
